Course Description:

Students will become more informed users of accounting information as they develop quantitative problem-solving skills, and a familiarity with the accounting model and published financial statements. After completing their course, they should be able to:

- interpret an income statement, statement of financial position, statement of retained earnings, and statement of cash flows.
- analyze and record common business transactions
- use basic ratios for financial statement analysis
- identify internal control concepts, and concepts that guide the process of accounting recognition, measurement, and presentation
- apply rules for measuring assets in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles

These course objectives will be assessed with tests and the final examination.

Learning Objectives:

By the end of this course, all students will be able to:

- The basic accounting system including the process for recording transactions and how transactions affect the financial statements, the adjusting process, and the closing process.
- The content of the basic financial statements-comprehensive income statement, balance sheet, statement of cash flows, statement of stockholder's equity.
- The preparation of simple financial statements.
- Basic financial statement analysis tools (ratios, common size statements, etc.)
- The external audit function in the US and the value it adds to the capital markets.
- The internal audit function and its place in the corporation (including the purpose of the internal audit function, independence and lines of reporting responsibility).
- Time value of money and its application to decision making for managers.

- The financial accounting standard-setting and regulation process.
- How management's choice of or application of accounting principles can affect the financial statements.
- Revenue recognition-rules and abuses.
- Receivables: net realizable value, allowance for uncollectables, international receivable transactions.
- Inventories: cost, cost flow assumptions, LCM.
- PPE: capital vs. revenue expenditures, depreciation: accounting vs. tax.
- Liabilities: definition, contingencies, stock options, bonds, leases.

Expectations

Treat this class as you would for your job: prepare by reading the text and doing assigned homework. Arrive promptly and remain in the classroom for the duration of the class period. Please do not exit and reenter the room during class time, except in an emergency situation; turn off your cell phone during class. Be proactive: if you are having a problem with the material being covered, seek help right away. [Office Hours: see the top of the page]

Policies

Textbooks: Not having textbooks or delay of purchasing the textbooks may significantly damage the chance of successful completion of the course. It is student's responsibility to obtain the textbooks in the first week of the semester. The publisher offers a 14-day grace period.

Absences and tardiness: Students who are absent from class should check WileyPlus and Blackboard to study the course contents and work on homework assignments.

Cheating and plagiarism: students are expected to maintain the highest standards of honesty in their college work. Cheating, forgery, and plagiarism are serious offenses, and students that engage in any form of academic dishonesty will be subject to disciplinary action.

School of Business: Ethics Statement

School of Business students are expected to maintain the highest standards of honesty in their college work. Cheating, forgery, and plagiarism are serious offenses, and students that engage in any form of academic dishonesty will be subject to disciplinary action. While we prefer to adhere to a code of honor in the School of Business, due to national trends in cheating, forgery, and plagiarism, we are instituting this policy within the school. Any student found cheating, committing forgery, or plagiarizing may suffer serious consequences ranging from failing a specific piece of work to failing the course. In some cases, a student may be expelled from the School of Business and the college.

Your business education includes learning ethics and values. We trust that you have the basic foundation upon which we can build. You will be judged by your character as well as by your knowledge and skills since the business world increasingly demands ethical behavior of its employees. Honesty remains an admirable quality.

Cheating is defined as giving or obtaining information by improper means in meeting any academic requirements or in other aspects of your professional conducts. The use for academic credit of the same work in more than one course without knowledge or consent of the instructor(s) is a form of cheating and is a serious violation of academic integrity.

Forgery is defined as the alteration of forms, documents, or records, or the signing of such forms or documents by someone other than the proper designee.

Plagiarism is the representation, intentional or unintentional, of another's words or ideas as one's own. When using another person's words in a paper, students must place them within quotation marks or clearly set them off in the text with appropriate citation. When students use another's ideas, they must clearly identify the source of the ideas. Plagiarism is a violation of the rights of the plagiarized author and of the implied assurance by the students that when they submit academic work it is their own work product. If students have any issues with respect to the definition of plagiarism, it is their responsibility to clarify the matter by conferring with the instructor.

Cases requiring disciplinary and/or grade appeal action will be adjudicated in accordance with Procedures for Resolving Academic Integrity Cases, a copy of which is available in the office of the Vice President for Students Affairs, the office of the Provost for Academic Affairs, and in the Academic Deans' offices.
