Course Description: A number of macroeconomic models are developed in this course, including Keynesian, monetarist, and rational expectations models. Economic theory is used to explore the nature and causes of business fluctuations and the desirability of various government policies.

Course Objectives: When you have completed this course, you should have acquired the following: 1. specific knowledge about macroeconomic concepts and terminology 2. a new perspective in seeing and understanding economic applications in news stories 3. the ability to think like an economist, as you apply economic reasoning to problems that arise in the home, workplace, and community 4. opportunities to learn how technology is changing the world, thereby affecting your experiences both as college students and as buyers/sellers in the marketplace 5. the chance to conduct macroeconomic research.

Assignments/Exams: Students are expected to pace themselves in reading the assigned material in the Mankiw text in accordance with the class schedule. Throughout the course, there will be 10 Discussion Board assignments and two online examinations. In addition, students will write a 5-6 page research paper on a topic relating to macroeconomics that is due at the end of the course.

Grading: The course work will be weighted as follows: two online mid-term examinations

(30% each); 10 Discussion Board assignments (20%); research paper (20%).
